

Important notes:

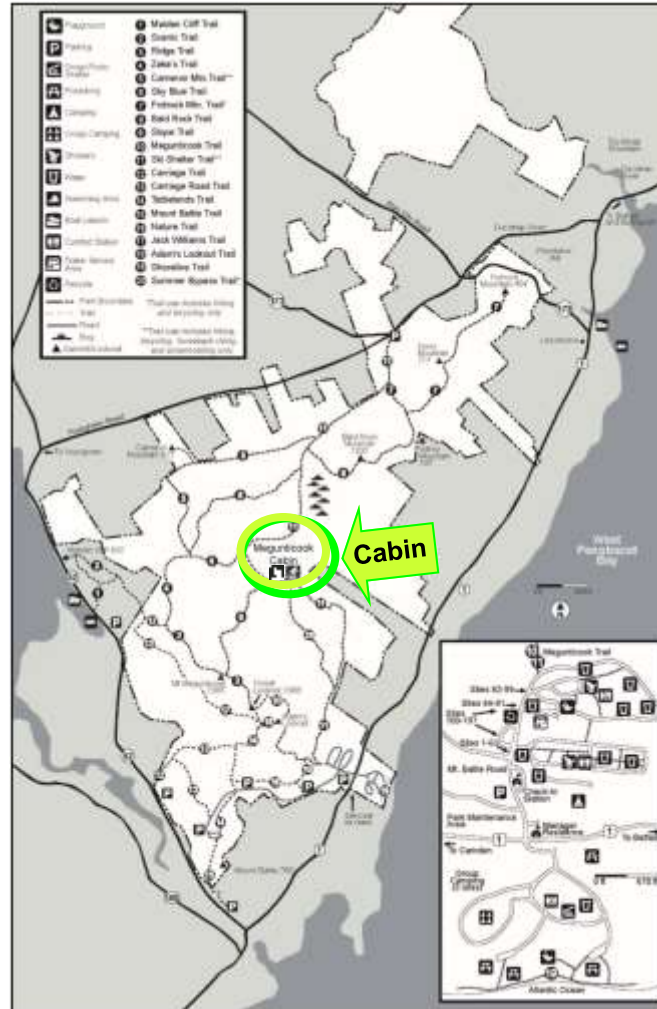

- Cell phone coverage is extremely poor in the area of the cabin.
- Gas lanterns should be suspended from the ceiling hooks provided.
- The woodstove should be the primary source of heat.
- Kindling and firewood is provided for a fee at the cabin. Buy It Where you Burn it!

- Please allow woodstove/fireplace fires to burn out. Water or snow used to put out a fire will damage the stove/fireplace.
- A trash can is provided outdoors. Any trash that won't fit in the can must be taken out when you leave.
- Outdoor amenities include two picnic tables, two hibachis and a fire ring.
- Treat the building with care so that we can offer this cabin to generations to come. Please do not use nails or add fixtures or graffiti.
- Use Leave No Trace principles and enjoy your visit. (www.lnt.org)

The original Ski Shelter was built as part of a federal recreation area.

History:

The Megunticook Cabin, now open for year-round reservations, was originally constructed as part of a federal recreation area during the late 1930's by the Civilian Conservation Corps as a ski shelter. Previously named the Megunticook Ski Shelter, it served as a warming hut at the base of several ski slopes on the northern side of Mt. Megunticook. Skiers accessed the slopes by driving in over plowed roads from Stevens Corner or from US Route 1 by driving up the Spring Brook truck road. No lifts were available, skiers climbed to the summit after a run. The ski slopes remained open during the 1940's and closed by the end of the 1950's, resulting in the Ski Shelter later falling into disrepair.

A shell consisting of a roof supported by posts was all that remained by the late 1980's. The building was razed in the early 1990's. In 2005 park staff rebuilt the ski shelter using lumber they harvested from park property. A grant from the MBNA Foundation provided funding to have the stone fireplaces rebuilt and also furnished building materials.
